Let's talk sheds, and how many and how big do you need? I'm sure we can please the fussiest of shed owners (dreamers) with these beauties which total over 280sqms and have new electrical sub boards to them.

Nearly all parts of the sheds have been lined and insulated, where one especially is ideal for operating large machinery within and the other (closest to the home) has been further developed with internal walls creating 3 rooms. Provisions have been made for a bathroom and toilet (the underground plumbing is established, the bathroom has not been built). This very easily could be bedrooms 5, 6 or 7 with a 3rd bathroom.

170,000litres of rainwater storage and plenty of scope to catch more if you wish in this high rainfall area and the dam's water can be pumped to the home garden, which has had new electrics installed. There's NBN and Foxtel is available too and if there's a power outage, a power metre has been set up for the home to run off a generator.

Here is a wonderful opportunity to acquire substantial land, enormous shed space and a beautiful home in the 'horse hub' of the hills, or at the very least, a very accessible, serene location.
